Structural changes in terms of change in restroom infrastructure and creation of separate security check are also being considered in the she-man station.

"The 'She-Man' station will be on the lines of the Pink stations, which were inaugurated on March 8 this year and provided special facilities for women passengers. The staff deployed at the Pink stations also consisted only of women except for security personnel. The 'She-Man' station will cater especially to the transgender community, though it will be open for all passengers, and will give facilities to facilitate the travel of the trans community in the metro system and also provide employment opportunities for them," news agency PTI quoted NMRC Managing Director Ritu Maheshwari.
